Ryan Spoon	Quality Assurance	Java, VB, C++, PHP, javascript, vbscript, all sorts of web stuff (I learned COBOL and RPG in school, but never used it)	[...] used Git to download and compile a coworker's Java database project [...]	I have drawn several diagrams, but I can't say they were true to the UML standards. Mostly for my own reference.	[Eclipse is] one of my more favorite IDEs.
Steve Totten	Functional Analyst	I'm familiar with Java, C#, VB, HTML, CSS, XHTML, DHTML, JavaScript (not an expert in ANY of them, but have used more of the HTML stuff than anything.)	No I haven't.	My first experience with a UML diagram was in the Tuesday night class we're taking now.	Visual Studio, TextPad, Eclipse, DreamWeaver	Yes	No	No	No	No	No
Drew Salyer	Technical Lead	[...] 3rd semester of Java. [...] PHP [...] regularly the past 4 years (along with JavaScript, web services/SOAP, XML, CSS, HTML, etc.). ... C++ ... AS3	a little bit?	Yeah, I'm a little rusty [...], but I'm currently honing those skills due to ITECS24. [...] Openoffice Draw, [...] ArgoUML [...]	[...] Eclipse for PHP (JS, HTML, etc) for 4 years. [...] used JGrasp ([...] simple compared to Eclipse). [...] I've been beefing up on using Eclipse for Java [...]		Yes	Yes
Stephanie Kinsella	Documentarian	Java, VB, html, sql, C#, .NET, C++, C, VB6, VB.NET, JAVA, HTML, CSS, XML, JAVASCRIPT, PHP, ASP.NET, MSSQL, MYSQL, ORACLE	No, I have not. I run tons of OSS. I use repos all the time. typically svn but I'm loving git now!	I did UML probably about 3 years ago but not to much extent. I could look it up and get a grasp for it again but I don't remember much. It's not that bad though.	I have used Visual Studio, BlueJ and Eclipse
David Ball	Project Leader			Used it when I was getting my AAS degree, used it in certificate program, learning it this semester.	VB 6, Visual Studio .NET, Eclipse, and NetBeans	Yes, out of date	Yes, EGIT for Eclipse	Yes, EGIT for Eclipse
